PRESIDENT MOFFAT POINTS "THE WAY"

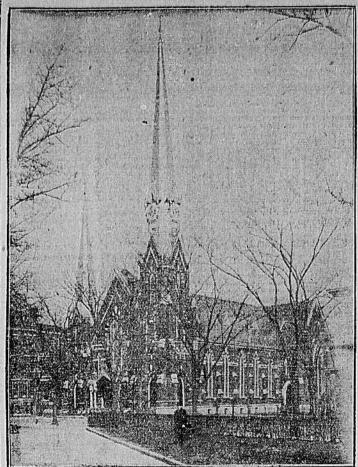

President of Washington and Jefferson College Delivers Addesses to Men's Meeting.

Rev. James D. Moffat, D. D., LL. D., president of Washington and Jefferson

Rev. James D. Moffat, D. D., L.L. D., president of Washington and Jefferson College, spoke in the Academy of Music yesterday evening to a large and appreciative body of men. The address was preceded by a fine musical programme, the choir of the First Baptist Church rendering several very beautiful selections, and Mrs. Jasper L. Rowe and Mr. Haddon S. Watkins also singing some beautiful solos.

Dr. Moffat took as his text the words; "The Way, The Trath, The Life." In the course of his address Dr. Moffat showed that Jesus is the way to God, and that He Himself is the truth, and that the truth is found as man finds Him and lives Him, that is, as the pattern of the truly righteous man. He is the life to every man who accepts Him, believes in Him and hives His life. He explained further that the man the world most needs is the man living Chiris, for only the one who lives the Christ life is a Christian.

The address was most scholarly, clearful and convincing. It was heard with the profoundest attention and interest, Belmont and his party.

PARK PLACE CHURCH, BFAUTIFULLY REFURNISHED

GOD IS SERVED BY SERVING MAN

Pr. Moffat Teaches That Christ's Great Lesson is in Services to One's Fellow.

Rev. James D. Moffat, D. D., LL, D. Christian Association, General Secretures, which was followed by prayer by dered two beautiful anthems, which were interspersed by singing from the congrethe benediction.

gation. Rev. Russell Cecil closed with the benediction.

Dr. Moffat took as his text the words: "If We Knew These Things, Happy Are We if We do Them." Taking as an illustration the instance of Christ washing the feet of his disciples just after the crufixion and just before His ascension, the speaker brought out the lesson he wished to teach in his sermon—that he who would be chief among men must first be servant to all and that Service to God comes only through service to one's fellowman. In the room in which the disciples then were everything necessary according to the Eastern custom was prepared, except that there were no servants to bathe the dust laden feet of the guests. All the disciples sat around the room, not one of them willing to perform the little service for the other. Christ, in order to teach a becoming humility and to show the necessity of serving God by serving man, took the towel Himself and bathed and wheel the feet of his followers. It was not the condition of the body but of the spirit that he wished to remedy. The disciples lacked the right feeling—that of willingness to serve one another. And so a great principle was involved in the action of Christ, who about to leave the world, could not depart before teaching the great principle of fellow service.

Continuing, Dr. Moffat said that Christ had taught nothing that was not of use to men in their daily lives. He preached simply those things that are in themselves essential to the service of God. These things 'He' taught and also that every man yould be rewarded according to his works. But "duty" is not the only word on which emphasis is laid in Christ's teach.

WHITTLING THE BIBLE.

Rev. Robert Forsyth Deplores Work of the Critic.

Work of the Critic.

Rev Mr. Forsyth preached at St. Paul's last creming on the 38th chapter of Jeremins, that being the 23d verse of the centing, his text being the 23d verse of the chapter—'And it came to pass that when Jenudi had read three or four leaves, he cut it (the roll) with the pen-kuife, and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth, intil all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth, intil all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth, intil all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth. The discourse was a powerful plea for acceptance and study of the Bible as it is, without too great effort to have its apparent monsistencies expectated away. He spok withing of the world with the pen-kuife of criticism, friendly as well as hostlin, in order to make it square with the ideas of this or that ase, or this or that school of thought. He said that the result was a thing of shreads and patches, and he insisted that if read in the right spirithespirit of faith—the Book of books is perfectly and beautifully harmonious in all its parts. "The worl of God is not bound," he quoted frequently, and he urged his heavers in cloquent and carrest forms to ching to the old Bible, without regard to modern interpretations, and to "read, mark and learn" it, as the way of life that leaded unto salvation.

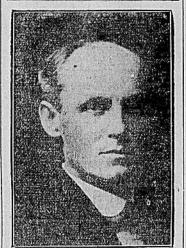

Mr. Forsyth referred in his seemon to Daniel Webster's remark that to his mind one of the Strongest proofs of the Divine origin of the Gospel was the fact that it had service hist evening by Roy, John Ridout, curate at St. Andrew's.

At the morning service in St. Paul's Mr. Forsyth preached on the "Parable of the Shower." The cooperation on this occasion was notably large.

Notice on Contractors.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORBOLK, VA., February 18.—The carpenters have demanded more wages. Notice has been served on the fifty contractors of the city that on May 1st the carpenters would ask for a flat scale of $2.50 a day, with no minimum scale. The prevailing scale has been $2.50 a day. The reason for the demand of the carpenters at this particular time," said Secretary Good, of the Central Labor Union, "is that they are paid less than any of the members of the Structural Trades Alliance. Some of the contractors have signified their intention of paying the increased wages. There are men of the first and second class among the carpenters, but there would be no difference in the pay under the new scale. Of course the first-class men would get the 'long end' of the work."

The young lades looked beaufful as they make the performance and the sweet strains of the entrance marche peasing effects of their youth and beamte peasing effects of the electric lights. The performances of the young ladies were particularly pleasing the finished effects showing careful training of teacher and faitful work of student. It was one of the most entirely successful and thoroughly pleasing recitals which the institution has given for some time.

The young ladies who constituted the committee of reception of guests were Misses Mahel Drewry and Annie Moomaw, of Virginia, and Kathryn Keezell, of Rockingham county, daughter of Senator George B. Keezell.

After the rectal the guests visited the art room and inspected its work, which is in charge of Miss Lydia Low, of New York city.
